

UNITED STATES EQUESTRIAN FEDERATION
GR838 - UNETHICAL TREATMENT OF THE HORSE
IMPLEMENTATION GUIDE

The Unethical Treatment of a Horse rule (formerly titled Cruelty to and Abuse of a Horse) was amended to ensure the safety and well-being of horses on and off competition grounds. As part of the rewrite of this rule, the United States Equestrian Federation (“Federation”) focused on creating a rule that meets the needs of equestrian sport and provides clarity for its members and community.

This document is intended to serve as a guide to the implementation of the Federation’s newly revised General Rule 838, Unethical Treatment of the Horse, and is not intended to supersede the rule. For the full definitions and application of the rule, please see here.

Scope and Jurisdiction of the Rule

Currently, GR838 applies to abuse and neglect of a horse that occurs on competition grounds.

- Beginning December 1, 2024, GR838 applies anywhere, regardless of whether the Unethical Treatment occurs on or off the grounds of a Federation competition, including home facilities.
- The Federation does not have the authority to make site visits to private property.

Definition of Unethical Treatment of a Horse

At this point in time, those individuals will be provided an opportunity to respond to allegations. Prior to advancing to a hearing before the Federation’s Hearing Committee, the Federation may offer the person(s) involved in the Unethical Treatment of the Horse an administrative penalty, including any of the penalties listed in the section below. If the administrative penalty is not offered or not accepted, the Federation may issue a Disciplinary Action Complaint and present its findings before a Hearing Panel for resolution. Penalties

If found to have violated the Rule, the individual(s) will be subject to such penalty in accordance with the published Penalty Guidelines and Federation rules, which may be a censure, fine, suspension, expulsion, or permanent ineligibility.
